A Quest for Authenticity and Joy

John Langstaff's life was a testament to his unwavering pursuit of authenticity and joy. Growing up in England during the early 20th century, he was deeply influenced by the traditional Christmas customs he experienced. These formative experiences ignited within him a lifelong passion for sharing the true spirit of the season.

In the 1950s, Langstaff immigrated to the United States, where he worked tirelessly to establish The Christmas Revels. This annual celebration, held in Boston and other cities, has become a beloved tradition that brings together communities to celebrate the Christmas season with song, dance, and storytelling. Through The Revels, Langstaff sought to preserve and share the rich cultural heritage of Christmas while fostering a sense of unity and joy.

A Visionary Leader

John Langstaff was not only a gifted musician and a passionate advocate for traditional Christmas customs, but also a visionary leader. He recognized the transformative power of the arts to inspire and connect people. His innovative approach to performance, which combined elements of theater, dance, and music, created an immersive and unforgettable experience for audiences.

As The Christmas Revels grew in popularity, Langstaff's leadership extended beyond Boston. He influenced countless other organizations and individuals who sought to create similar celebrations in their own communities. His legacy can be seen in the countless Christmas Revels groups that have been established across the United States and beyond.

A Man of Faith and Community

John Langstaff's life was deeply rooted in faith and a strong sense of community. He was an active member of the Episcopal Church, where he served as a lay liturgist and choir director. His commitment to his faith informed his work with The Christmas Revels, which he saw as a way to share the message of love and hope that is central to the Christmas story.

Langstaff also believed strongly in the importance of building community through the arts. He actively supported local theater groups and schools, and he was a founding member of the Community Music Center of Boston. His passion for bringing people together through music and performance extended beyond the Christmas season.

A Lasting Legacy

John Langstaff passed away in 2005, but his legacy continues to live on through The Christmas Revels and the countless lives he touched.
