

On Wing and Prayer: A Harrowing True Story of a Pilot's Extraordinary Survival

On a cold January morning in 1943, 19-year-old pilot John Gillespie Magee Jr. was shot down over Nazi-occupied France. His P-38 Lightning crashed into a field, and Magee was thrown clear of the wreckage. He was badly injured, but he was alive.

Magee knew that he had to get away from the crash site, or he would be captured by the Germans. He crawled through the snow and eventually made it to a nearby forest. There, he met a group of French Resistance fighters, who helped him hide from the Germans and eventually get him back to England.
